Dear:

It is an enriching experience to go through the controversies of a political convention and then return to the quiet of an office and find such encouraging letters as yours.

It takes a little time to see the whole matter in good perspective, but like good Americans we will give sustained effort to the solution of the problems ahead, because in the last analysis it is the well-being of the country that counts.

Thanks a million for your encouragement and for your expression of esteem.

With every good wish,

Everett McKinley Dirksen
